

May Have New Post Office Building; East Northfield Among Those Listed; Estimated Cost To Be About $75,000

Information Causes A Surprise Here

News coming from Washington reveals that East Northfield and Shelburne Falls are in a preferred list for consideration in the erection of a post office building. It is estimated that such a building for East Northfield would cost about $75,000 and the one for Shelburne Falls about $85,000. The listings are made because of the necessity of providing adequate floor space and facilities for the offices which most requires such improvement in the Congressional District in which they are located.

Since only one such project can be attempted in the next effort of construction in any Congressional District, it is plainly evident that there must be some competition between the two places of East Northfield and Shelburne Falls. Hon. Allen T. Treadway is our Congressman from this district and when some action is contemplated he probably will be besieged in the matter.

Nothing has come from the post office department of which Postmaster General James Farley is the head to any official here but the Editor of the Press has requested some authoritative information and when received will be announced in these columns.

The Handy Man At Vernon Green

When Robert gets the sun up and starts the day off right. The tea room girls all come around to view him with delight. Oh cheerful in the kitchen fire, the oatmeal set to boil. And cheerful in his grinning as he starts them at their toil.

For Robert watches over them like a mother over twins; He sees the good things that they do and also all their sins; He hustles to them all their need and lightens all their cares. And soon he'll have a curfew rule and hear them say their prayers.

For it's "Robert won't you fix my car; it coughs and has the blues?" And "Robert won't you grind these knives, they are not fit to use?" And "Robert make an ice box" and "Set the traps for mice;" And "Robert please to make ice cream;" They ask him awful nice.

It's "Robert take the truck and go..." And "Robert get some bread;" And "Robert, cheer us up a bit by standing on your head;" It's "Robert tie my apron strings and do it right away;" And "Robert please do everything, I'm feeling tired today."

Now Robert knows that Mother Eve, when in Eden she began Was just one blank blank woman unless she had her man; That down the hurrying ages, the women, bless their souls! Have been just what men made them; sour dough or buttered rolls.

So Robert has compassion, as a gentleman should do; It makes him groan to do it but he has to carry through The task of changing charming girls into useful kinds of creatures; But it's given him that mournful air and pain-distorted features. But heaven he gains, and sainthood and a full escape from Hades, For no man need fear Judgment Day who has tried to please the ladies.

Women Elect

At the meeting of the women of Northfield held Wednesday afternoon at Alexander hall, Mrs. Ralph Forsaith presided. An election was held to elect three members to the board controlling Alexander hall and those chosen were Mrs. Donald Williams, Mrs. I. J. Lawrence and Mrs. Murray Hammond. Those whose terms expired were Mrs. N. P. Wood, Mrs. A. H. Wright and Mrs. Ralph Forsaith. The board will elect officers later.

Sunday Services At Sage

Large audiences were present at both morning and evening services at Sage Chapel on the Seminary campus last Sunday when Professor James T. Cleland of Amherst college was the speaker. Prof. Cleland is a native of Glasgow, Scotland, and he presented Washington as a Britisher in his addresses. Said Prof. Cleland: "George Washington was a Britisher and both nations may share in his fame today. He taught Britishers in his time how not to lose the other colonies of the Empire."

That individuals and all that is held worthwhile to them cost something and are not a free gift was the general thought of Mr. Cleland. "Ye are not your own; ye are bought with a price," was the text taken from Corinthians. "Despite the prevailing ideas from the time of the Epicureans, the Stoics, and the dictators today that people can carve out their own destinies themselves, the truth stated by Paul two centuries ago still stands," said the speaker.

"Whether we like it or not, we are not our own. One look at today's business world will convince any doubter that a man's business is not his own. Neither is a nation able to stand by itself alone. Rugged individualism can no longer stand, unless a country is going to pass into fascism."

The second part of the text proves that we are bought with a price. In religion and especially Christianity that brings us to the atonement. That is the belief that life is worthwhile because people before us have sacrificed to make the life for us possible. Jesus died for the good will that links man with man and man with God.

The Rev. Harold B. Ingalls, chaplain of the Seminary, was in charge of the service, with Irving J. Lawrence as director of music. Colena Leach of the Westminster Choir School and Dorothy Pearson rendered solos and Carlton W. L'Honnemieu was at the organ.

Neighborhood Rally Interest Of Missions

The annual neighborhood missionary rally at the Northfield Missionary conference will take place next Tuesday on the campus of the summer conference. The management has announced an invitation to all Christian workers within driving distance to share in the classes and meetings of that day, as well as partake in the home lunches at noon. Last year nearly 200 lay workers and ministers from many different denominations attended the gathering.

The missionary conference opened its sessions today with 600 women attending. "Rural America" and "The Moslem World" are the two topics which will be stressed during the week of sessions. A special Dwight L. Moody drama called "The Upward Strife" will be presented on Saturday night. The Sunday speaker will be the Rev. William Lloyd Imes, D. D., minister of the St. James Presbyterian church, New York City.

Dr. Samuel Guy Inman of New York will present an address on the subject, "Implications of the Buenos Aires Latin-America conference for World Peace" next Tuesday evening at 8. Dr. Inman was a consulting authority for President Roosevelt at this important peace gathering in South America last fall.

Contract Awarded For Nelson's Bridge

The Warnard Construction Co., Inc., of Cambridge, was the low bidder for the construction of the concrete box culvert, bridge and approaches on the Hermon-South Vernon road at Nelson's Pond when the bids were opened at the Department of Public Works in Boston on Tuesday. Construction will begin immediately.

The Woman's Club of Orange has shown some remarkable enterprise, following similar action by other prominent women's clubs by announcing their completed programs for next season and publishing it in the press. The Orange program was published in the Enterprise and Journal of last week.

Towners Building Beautiful Home At Vernon Green

New in Vermont architecture is the residence designed for Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Towner of Vernon by Bernhard Dirks, architect of Greenfield, excavation for which will be started this week by the Cummings Construction Co. of Ware, Mass. The lines of this residence are modern though not extreme, and its designer feels that in spite of its flat roof and construction of white concrete blocks, it will fit into its hillside setting and be in harmony with the early colonial buildings of that locality.

The dwelling, with attached three-car garage, contains seventeen rooms with three stories overlooking the Connecticut river near which it is located, and two stories facing route 30, the Windham county road which runs through the Towner's hundred acre farm. The front entrance on the south is recessed beyond an open quadrangle, and the family's terrace room and open terrace are on the north and east overlooking a horse-shoe bend in the river at this point. A large recreation room is a feature of this semi-basement hillside construction. Library and living room, kitchen and pantry, and two master bedrooms are on the middle floor, and bedrooms and a sleeping porch on the third floor. The asphalt roof is edged with a low parapet, and provision is made for the drainage of rain water, and melted snow through three tile-systems in different areas of the roof which lead off through the inside walls of the house, and drain below ground independently of the plumbing system.

A feature planned for the interior decoration is the panelling of the library and living room in old pine. Some of this has been cut from the giant pine tree which once belonged to Brattleboro's Arctic explorer. Other pine panelling has been saved from the wide floor boards in the carriage house razed last year when the Vernon Green Tea House was remodeled, and several of the buildings constructed by Mrs. Towner's great grandfather and grandfather were torn down.

It is planned to include in the wall decoration of the new house, photographic murals similar to the Windham county scenes which now feature the Tea House decorative scheme. Mr. and Mrs. Towner's interest in the American Indian traditions of their property will, also be brought out in the decoration and wall treatment of the recreation room.

Completion date has been set for early January, and Mr. and Mrs. Towner plan to make this their year-round residence with their four children, although Mr. Towner will continue his attention and interest in his New York business.

Usual Vandalism

The observance of the Fourth in town was more or less of a quiet nature except the noise of explosives by "kids" or grown-up "kids" over the three day period. Many families had gone elsewhere for the vacation or taken trips by automobile. There were some house parties and the hotels were well patronized. No conferences were in session. Some Northfield folks went over to the Vernon Green for an outing and a group spent the day at Camp Wamawassa.

The observance here was marked by the usual pranks of our bad boys, the usual "angel faces" who now look so innocent. A group of a dozen or more hung an old wagon on the pole in front of the high school, burned some old stuff in front of Center school, tore down the Goodspeed sign off the Webster block, removed the park bench, upturned the benches at the playground and pulled up the newly placed CCC sign at the head of Warwick avenue and put it against the entrance to the town hall. The latter act may get some one into trouble for meddling with Federal property.

It all happened after the midnight hours when State Police were elsewhere and our Constables were enjoying "pleasant dreams."

John Addison and Raymond Vorce are enrolled in the Franklin county 4-H camp at Catamount Hill in Colrain. They report having a fine time. Wednesday was visitors' day and they greeted their friends.

Large Company Attend Rehearsal For The Festival

Thirty-five songbirds responded to the call for the first rehearsal for the Festival of Sacred Music when Wray T. Lundquist began the first practice Tuesday evening in Music Hall. The greater part of them came from the staff of the summer conferences, students from the Seminary and Hermon. Not all though, for Mr. Irving J. Lawrence, Miss Helen Handy, Miss Euphrasia Purrington and one or two others from the town were present, and Miss Elinor Barber brought some of her choir from Bernardston. The long-distance record was awarded to Mrs. S. A. Wright who registered as coming from Phoenix, Arizona. Conflicting engagements made it impossible for many to be present, but a much larger chorus is expected next Wednesday. It was fun, according to those present. "We actually forgot that it was a hot evening," one alto was overheard saying.

Mr. Lundquist made a very pleasing impression on the chorus. His incisive, direct manner of conducting was punctuated by flashes of a sense of humor that appealed to his pupils and made the evening a pleasant experience. Some work was done on each of five numbers. New ones will be added to the repertoire each week while the more familiar ones will be perfect until the chorus is all ready for the great festival on Aug. 15.

More male voices are needed, and it is hoped that there will be a good turn-out next Wednesday at eight o'clock and each Wednesday thereafter. Music is furnished free of charge by the Northfield Schools. Rehearsals are held in the Music hall on the Seminary campus.

Girl Scout Supper

Weather conditions were fine Tuesday evening when the progressive supper of the Girl Scouts, in aid of the Camp Fund was held. The first course was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Polhemus, the second at Dr. and Mrs. Wright and the final at Mr. and Mrs. Fitts. Townspeople and summer residents turned out and the patronage exceeded by nearly a hundred the number of tickets sold in advance. Proceeds will probably net $55. The Girl Scout Council regret the limited supply of the last two courses, but the first course was bountiful and trust no one was hungry.

Much appreciation is due the committee who directed and thanks to those who contributed food, money, their laws, and otherwise assisted. The supper committee were Mrs. Charles Kehi, Mrs. Frank H. Montague, Mrs. Carroll Miller, Mrs. L. A. Polhemus, Mrs. F. Wilton Dean, Miss Carrie J. Cook, Mrs. A. H. Wright, Mrs. Walter Hyde, Miss Sophie Savaeff, Mrs. A. P. Fitt, Mrs. Andrew Savaeff, Mrs. Sidney Given and Miss May Thompson. Capt. Abbott and Lieut. Potts were the ticket committee.

Girl Scouts assisting were: Edith Clark, Winifred Drown, Ellen Glebel, Janet Kehi, Jean Langua, Gloria and Helen Savaeff, Sybil Severance, Barbara Simmons, Martha and Dorothy Spears, Polly Spencer.

The second group of girls to attend the camp go tomorrow for a week. They are Winifred Drown, Jean Langua, Enid Miner, Helen Savaeff, Dorothy and Martha Spears and Ethel Tenney.

Plodding Along Over the Great Waters

On the bosom of the deep chasing the horizon where the mighty waters and the sky seem to meet, there in safety on the good old ship our Hostellers who left Northfield for the foreign shores are enjoying the quiet, and the rest of an ocean voyage in preparation for the wonderful days to follow.

Last Hostellers Sail For Foreign Shores; Out Upon The Deep

The last group of Youth Hostellers sailed for Europe last Saturday aboard the Steamship De-Grasse from New York. They will divide into small groups as have others who have gone before and travel much of the countries of Central Europe and the British Isles. This brings the total number of hostellers in Europe who belong to the American party to 240 and is a great increase in the number who went over last year of 119.

It is an indication of the growth and popularity of this youth movement in America. Neither Monroe nor Isabel Smith, the American directors, have gone abroad this summer and the leadership of the various groups is in the hands of competent persons. Monroe is with the first rolling hotel tour now in western Canada aboard a coach of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Isabel will remain in Northfield at the headquarters to direct the general movement.

It's a great hostel year in America and an enthusiastic bunch of young travelers are expected back in Northfield when the tours end about Sept. 1.

Reed - Holton

Miss Eunice M. Holton, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Holton of West Northfield was married at 3 o'clock Monday to George Edward Reed, son of Mrs. Bessie M. Reed at the home of the groom. Rev. Stanley Carne performed the double ring service.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Elsie Hildreth, while Francis B. Reed, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride was attired in printed chiffon and carried a bouquet of pale pink roses and for-get-me-nots. Her bridesmaid wore a printed chiffon and carried red roses with maiden hair ferns.

The home was attractively decorated with garden flowers. After the ceremony a reception was held. Guests were present from Brattleboro, Springfield, Montague, Erving, Arlington and Northfield. The couple left immediately after the reception for a honeymoon trip of unannounced destination.

Mrs. Reed was graduated from the Northfield high school and has been employed by the Erving Paper Mills. The groom also was graduated from the Northfield high school and is employed by Frost and Higgins of Arlington, Mass.

Given Reception

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence D. Quinlan who have recently returned from their wedding trip were given a surprise reception in the town hall Wednesday evening by a large assemblage and given a gift with the best wishes of all for health and prosperity and a long life. A social time followed the reception with a most interesting program of music and afterward refreshments were served.

Another Conference Now In Session; Considers Missions

The Northfield Missionary conference was convened here Wednesday night at 8 o'clock with over 800 women from hundreds of churches throughout the east to discuss for eight days two themes, "The Rural Church in America," and the foreign missions field, "The Moslem World." Amy O. Welcher of Hartford is chairman.

"Discovering Divine Designs" was the subject of the meeting Wednesday night with Miss Welcher presiding. An introduction of the speakers and leaders took place at that time. Bible study groups will occupy the first hour each day beginning at 8:45, followed by the study-book groups on home and foreign missions. Special courses such as a "Taster's Course in Missions," "A Christian Philosophy of Life" junior and primary missions, and a program workshop. In the afternoons there will be denominational fellowship services. A faculty and missionary reception at the Northfield Hotel will be held Friday afternoon.

The Thursday evening service was addressed by Rev. Hilda L. Ives, vice-president of the International Association of Agricultural Missions and the executive secretary of the rural church movement in New England. The evening speaker Friday will be the Rev. Charles T. Leber, D. D., secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, U. S. A., whose subject is "The Greatest Power in the World."

Dwight L. Moody will be honored in a special service Saturday night, when a dramatic presentation called, "The Upward Strife" written by Marie I. Whiffen, New York City, author of religious drama, will be given. Eleanor Weddell-Roberts, composer, wrote the music, and the pageant will be directed by Mrs. Anna Marmein.

William G. Irvine

William Griffin Irvine, beloved husband of Alice Chester White, died at the Northfield summer home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Irvine (of Brooklyn) on Pierson road on Thursday, July 1. He had been in ill health for some time and was 46 years of age. Previous to the World War he had spent much time in Northfield with his parents. He joined Troop C of the First New York Cavalry, which was afterward the 104th machine gun company attached to Headquarters of the 27th division. He saw severe service and was wounded in action. After his return home, with Mrs. Irvine, he made his residence in New York where he was engaged in business, but during the past few years resided in Rye, N. Y. This summer he had been in Northfield only a short time.

Surviving, besides his wife, are his parents, two sisters, Miss Gladys Irvine, and Mrs. Constance Kittinger, also two brothers, Lieut. Commander Rutledge Irvine of the United States Navy and Paul Irvine. The body was taken to New York for service and burial last Friday. Among those who knew him here he was highly regarded and esteemed.

Miss Spring Dies

Information reaches Northfield this week of the sudden death of Miss A. M. Spring of Pittsburg, Pa., at Estes Park, Colorado on June 29th. Particulars are lacking but it is said she had left her home at Point Loma, Calif., for a visit at Estes Park where she became ill and passed away after a few days. She was a former property owner and resident of Rustic Ridge and was a benefactress to the community. She was a generous supporter of the Northfield Seminary in past years and also gave the property for the establishment of the Spring Memorial Gardens on Main street on which since two houses have been erected. She gave liberally to the work of the Pocket Testament League and other religious organization with which she was affiliated. She was a woman of high character, fundamental in her thinking along Christian living, kindly and generous, a woman whose charity knew no bounds.

EDITORIAL

The public are being fed up on the labor situation with its notorious "sit-down strikes" its "walk-outs" its "picketing" and with its attitude to destroy, if not even to kill to accomplish some sinister purpose. Everyone sympathizes with labor in a just and lawful endeavor but today it is fast losing that sympathy because overlooking the rights and needs of the public it sees itself only in a selfish effort. The CIO and its leader, Mr. Lewis, deserve condemnation for the methods they have pursued in the industrial world. Instead of the organization proving itself as of value to the nation and its employed it has emphasized its own determination in the "right to strike" as to forget that every man has the "right to work."

The Northfield baseball team is playing some ball this season and the high school grounds afford a most excellent field although some summer residents who attend many of the games still prefer the hotel grounds for convenience as they walk. The team is worthy of loyal support upon the part of the fans. Their recent record of winning from strong teams show that they can put up a fight when required to do so. Success to the local baseball team.

The Back Yard Gardener

I've seen a good many types of gardens—old-fashioned, herbaceous borders, formal, rock, sunken, and all the rest—but when all is said and done I think that a good wild flower garden is just about as nice as any.

Wild flower gardens aren't as popular as they should be. But on the other hand, it might be a good thing, since if they were a fad you'd see a lot of pretty wild flowers transplanted only to pass out of the picture because there is quite a change from the wild state to what we ordinarily find in the home garden.

You probably say that shade is essential to growing wild flowers, but there is a difference in the kind of shade. The worst possible is the sugar maple tree. The roots of the maple seem to take away all of the moisture from the soil. Then the other extreme—or, in other words, the best—is the old apple tree. The north side of a building is also good provided it doesn't get the drip from the roof or doesn't get too much ice during the winter. I think flower authorities claim that the best shade of all is artificial shade made by an arbor of some sort.

When it comes to soil, one of the best ways to make your garden like the soil of the woods is to put in a layer of peat moss. About an inch or so spread over the surface of the garden and allowed to decay into the soil will be pretty satisfactory. Of course, this peat moss tends to create an acid soil, although it doesn't matter so much whether the soil is sour or sweet just so long as it contains plenty of food for the plant to eat.

Of course, that doesn't hold

WHAT!
NO ELECTRIC RANGE?

There's more than one way to fry an egg, broil a steak, or bake a cake. The most satisfactory way is to use an electric range—the cooking medium of the moderns.

for all wild flowers and it's up to the individual to use a little common sense and judgment as to what the flower or plant likes.

The same holds true whether the plant likes a lot of water or likes dry areas. You will notice that certain species, like the showy lady's-slipper, grow with their crowns out of the water—in other words, where it is reasonably dry, but you will also find that the roots usually go down far enough into the ground to draw a plentiful supply of moisture.

And speaking of moisture, there is one thing that is very essential in transplanting wild flowers, and that is to get them transplanted just as rapidly as possible. Don't dig them out hurriedly, throw them into the back of the car, and then a couple of days later put them into the ground and expect them to live.

Of course, the native flowers usually do the best in a garden of this type, but you'd be surprised at the variety of plants from other sections of the country which will do nicely for you. For example, many of the plants which come from the South and which down there require dense shade will do better when they get a little sun up in this neck of the woods.

I think it is a good idea to provide a background for this wild flower area. Here's one that makes a mighty fine combination—wild birch with mountain laurel, or hemlock with some native plants such as viburnum, sweet pepper, or spice bush.

You'd be surprised at the number of ferns that there are growing in our woods. Then when you mix in the jack-in-the-pulpits, bloodroots, lady's-slippers, star flowers, buttercups, and all the rest, you certainly have a nice area. I have a jack-in-the-pulpit in my back yard that's 20 inches high and the leaves are about 10 inches square.
